ASBYU hopefuls in the running; under restrictions

The presidential candidates Schlappi and Johnson, who were disqualified Friday morning, appealed to the Supreme Court which overturned the Commons Court decision allowing the candidates to continue to run against Doughty and Frame and Kilburn and Madsen (as write — in candidates) but under strict regulations. Although the ASBYU Supreme Court reversed the decision of disqualification, they have ruled that Schlappi and Johnson must terminate any active campaigning. They may only leave up existing materials, said Supreme Court Justice Brad Frazer.

He said they may not hand out any brochures, display any banners on campus or engage in any active campaigning, as informing people of their candidacy. "They were very close to being disqualified but it was not shown that they demonstrated gross disregard for the election rules. The court did not feel that they demonstrated intent in their violations," said Frazer. They demonstrated the frequency, gravity and reckless disregard stated in the newly developed Supreme Court precedent for disqualification, he said, but they did not display intent and did not violate the Honor Code which must be included to constitute the disqualification.

Mike O'Neil, appellant for the defense, said it was an equitable decision and they were extremely fortunate because it was a very close decision. "The Supreme Court has erred. They have ruined student elections as far as equitable and fair elections in the future.

"What they are saying is people who don't play fair will win. The Supreme Court had no business changing that decision. They did not know all the facts. By changing that decision they are condoning cheating," said Randy Neal, elections committee chairman. Neal said the decision reversed 12 months of work. All the candidates were informed that if they disregarded the bylaws they would be penalized. Schlappi and Johnson played with the bylaws and entered into the gray areas, he said.

"Our elections are out the window. It is time to get rid of elections because students cannot run them," said Neal. Schlappi said he is glad he is back in the race regardless of the type of campaign he will have to run.

"It's like giving you a gun without any bullets. How can you fight?" he said. Johnson said he still has faith that they can win the election if the students keep the same faith. "The students are the ones that vote. If they want Mike and I in office, we'll be in office," he said. Because of the possible disqualification, three teams were taken for the primaries to run in the general elections. According to Neal, the constitution only permits two on the ballot. Doughty and Frame will appear on the ballot. Kilburn and Madsen may continue to campaign, but may appear on the ballot only as a write-in candidate.

"Justice can only be served at the polls at this point. It is up to the students to make the final decision," said Doug Koob, former elections committee member.

Gorbachev takes over top position in USSR

Change may better relations with U.S.

By Sherill Spruance
Universe Staff Writer

The appointment of Mikhail Gorbachev as general secretary of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union could signal improved relations between the Soviets and the Americans, said an assistant professor of political science at BYU.

Gorbachev, 54, replaces Konstantin Chernenko, 73, who died Sunday from complications of emphysema.

"I am very optimistic about the choice," said Eric Jones, who teaches classes on China, Russia, and world energy policy. "He is more of a 'butter' person than a 'guns' person."

Gorbachev has worked mainly in overseeing agriculture. Since 1978 he has been the party secretary in charge of agriculture.

He has spent most of his career helping the Soviet consumer. Gorbachev is more interested in improving the standard of living in the Soviet Union than in expanding Soviet global military power, he said.

"In the long run, I think Gorbachev will try to seek accommodation with the United States so he can spend more effort on agriculture and goods. But, although he is general secretary, he is still somewhat constrained in policy making."

All Soviet policy is made through the Politburo, a group of the top Soviet officials. There are some basic problems between the United States and the Soviet Union that will not go away just because they have a new leader, he said.

However, Jones said he thought Gorbachev would try to establish a good relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. Gorbachev was speaking in favor of détente last year when the Soviet press was attacking the United States and the Reagan administration.

Gorbachev is only in his early 50s, but he has already gained support among top Soviet officials, Jones said. He has had close political connections with both Brezhnev and Chernenko.

"I think the speed with which the new appointment was made indicates a general support of Gorbachev," he said.

Gorbachev, an agriculture and economic specialist who recently has taken foreign missions as well, has been part of a collective Kremlin leadership whose views he most likely will continue to represent.

In addition, they said, it takes years before a Soviet leader can amass enough personal power to effect major changes.

But they noted one major difference — whereas Chernenko was, at 72, the oldest man to become party chief, Gorbachev is the youngest since Josef Stalin took power in 1924 at age 45.

It was not known whether Gorbachev would also be made president, as Chernenko and his two predecessors were. That designation is made by the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament.

The first sign of an emergency in Moscow came Sunday when traveling Soviet delegations were recalled suddenly from the United States and other countries. Early Monday, Soviet radio and television switched from their regular programming to somber music and for peace, will remain forever in the hearts of the Soviet people and of the whole of progressive mankind."

A later medical bulletin said he died of the lung disease emphysema, complicated by unspecified cardiac difficulties and chronic hepatitis of his liver.

On Monday evening, Gorbachev led Politburo members into the House of Unions, where Chernenko lay in state in a flower-decked coffin, to pay respects to the deceased leader.

By the time he reached the No. 1 spot Chernenko could be little more than a elderly figurehead, who dropped from public sight for months at a time because of his illnesses.

The sudden transition at the top came on the eve of new U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms-control talks in Geneva, Switzerland, reopening after a 16-month suspension. The delegations announced Monday they would begin the discussions as scheduled today.

From Washington, President Reagan sent a message of condolence to the Soviets, saying, "I wish to reiterate the strong desire of the American people for world peace."

The American chief executive told reporters he eventually would "like to have a talk . . . a meeting of minds" with Gorbachev. But he ruled out attending Wednesday's Chernenko funeral, saying he "didn't see anything that could be achieved" by coming to Moscow.

Vice President George Bush is to head the U.S. delegation.

Western diplomats here noted that the Lebanese army gave no information on its casualties, but a Shiite militia spokesman said two soldiers were killed and four were wounded.

State and private Lebanese radio stations maintained most of those killed in Zrariye, which has a population of 8,000 to 10,000, were civilian villagers.

Reporters who reached this village about a mile from Zrariye heard gunfire and loud explosions throughout most of the day and saw two houses burning.

Villagers, militiamen and soldiers in Arzay said Israeli forces began pounding Zrariye with field artillery and tank cannons at 11 p.m. Sunday and pushed into the town from three directions at 6 a.m. Monday.

The 30-man Lebanese army garrison supported by fighters from Amal, Lebanon's largest Shiite militia, tried to halt the thrust but were overcome quickly by the superior Israeli strength, Amal's area commander said.

"The army tried to defend but, outgunned and outnumbered, had to give in," Ali Hamdan said. "We are preparing to regain the town, irrespective of the cost."

Israel Radio reported that Israeli troops killed 30 guerrillas and destroyed 10 houses. It said many guerrillas were caught trying to flee with loads of weapons and explosives.

Israel's military command said its forces took 10 Lebanese soldiers prisoner when they ignored a warning not to resist. "Many (guerrilla) suspects and weapons in great quantities" also were captured, the command said.

be partly "a familiarization process" between delegations. He added "We hope that our negotiators and Soviet negotiators can establish an immediate relationship which can make early progress possible."

Lehman said a second meeting would be Thursday and that this session, expected to be held in the U.S. arms control offices, "will probably move on to more direct negotiations."

Geneva arms negotiations normally run for eight weeks. Afterwards, negotiators go back to their capitals for a similar period before returning for a new round of talks. Lehman indicated Monday the first round might be shorter this time.

Kampelman, a Democrat who negotiated the Soviets for three years at the Madrid European Security Conference, will handle space arms. Tower, a former Republican U.S. senator from Texas, will negotiate on long-range missiles, and Giltman on intermediate-range missiles.

The chief Soviet negotiator is Victor P. Karpov, aided by Yuri A. Krivitskiy and Alexei A. Obukhov.

Karpov said when he arrived Sunday that the Soviets hope to attain the "truly historic goal" of eliminating nuclear weapons. He said neither side should have "unilateral advantage" over the other.

Troops storm Lebanese village following attack on Israeli town

ARZAY, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli troops and armor stormed a southern Lebanese village outside the occupation zone Monday, overpowered the Lebanese army garrison and killed at least 24 people said to be guerrillas by the military command.

The dawn assault on the Shiite Moslem town of Zrariye followed a night-long artillery bombardment. Residents who fled the village said the shelling began a few hours after a suicide bomber in a pickup truck filled with explosives killed 12 Israeli soldiers and wounded 14 near the Israeli border.

Israel's military command said its forces took 10 Lebanese soldiers prisoner when they ignored a warning not to resist. "Many (guerrilla) suspects and weapons in great quantities" also were captured, the command said.

Arms talks with Soviets to commence as planned Meeting not postponed despite leader's death

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Nuclear arms talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are expected to start today as scheduled, despite the death of Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

The United States had not formally suggested a postponement, said spokesman Joseph Lehman, but had left it to the Soviets to make clear their desires.

There was no direct word from the Soviet mission, where telephones were either busy or went unanswered most of the day.

Elder Loren C. Dunn to speak at Devotional

Elder Loren C. Dunn, a member of the First Quorum of Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak at today's Devotional assembly at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

Elder Dunn, an LDS general authority since 1988, serves as president of the North America Northeast Area presidency. His previous assignments included executive administrator to the Northern Plains/Alberta Canada and the Australia-New Zealand Areas, mission supervisor on the west coast of South America, Great Britain, the northeast United States and president of the Australia Sydney Mission.

Before his church calls, Elder Dunn was director of communications for the New England Council of Economic Development in Boston. Since returning to Utah, he has served on industrial development boards and committees.

He received a bachelor's degree in journalism and economics from BYU in 1963 and a master's degree in public relations from Boston University. He played on the BYU basketball team which won the NIT championship in 1961.

The address will be broadcast live on KBYU-TV (Channel 11) and KBYU-FM (88.9) and repeated on TV tonight at 9 p.m. and Sunday at 10 a.m. and on FM Sunday at 9 p.m.

The public is welcome to attend the assembly. Music will be provided by the University Chorus under the direction of Dr. Donald H. Ripplinger.

Reagan to skip rites for Soviet president

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, skipping a chance to meet the Kremlin's new leader, said he decided not to attend the funeral of Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko because he was busy visiting with other foreign leaders and "didn't see anything that could be achieved" by going to Moscow.

The president, whose administration now has spanned four Soviet leaders, said he would be "more than ready to visit with the new Soviet Communist Party chief, Mikhail Gorbachev, 54, once he settles into office. Reagan did not meet with any of Gorbachev's predecessors.

"You have to wait for a new man now to get in place and establish his regime, and then I'll be more than ready to (meet), because I think there's a great mutual suspicion between the two countries. I think ours is more justified than theirs," Reagan said. "It's like to have a talk and see if some way we can't someday have a meeting of minds," the president said at a White House luncheon with regional editors and broadcasters.

Reagan sent a message of condolence to the Soviet leadership and people, saying, "At this solemn time, I wish to reiterate the strong desire of the American people for world peace."

Reagan chose Vice President George Bush to head a funeral delegation that includes Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Arthur A. Hartman, the U.S. ambassador to Moscow. Bush also represented the United States for the funerals of Leonid I.

Brezhnev in 1982 and Yuri V. Andropov in 1984. Reagan, who was awakened before dawn Monday with news of Chernenko's death, said, "As of 4 o'clock this morning, I started thinking about it, after the phone call came."

In deciding against the trip, however, Reagan said, "There's an awful lot on my plate right now that would have to be set aside. I didn't see that anything could be achieved by so going, and we discussed it in the office this morning, but, no, I learned the other way."

Reagan noted that Bush already was in Geneva after delivering a speech, so "it would seem very logical for him to do it."

Reagan is due to meet today with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and leaves Sunday for an overnight trip to Quebec for a meeting with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

'Renegade attorneys' subject of report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense attorneys who have lost their ethical moorings constitute a critical element in the legal support system of organized crime, a presidential commission was told Monday.

In a report prepared for a symposium on legal ethics, staff members of the President's Commission on Organized Crime maintained that law enforcement authorities and bar associations must come to grips with "renegade attorneys" who violate the law and ethics in the course of their legal work.

"There is no reason to doubt that the overwhelming majority of defense counsel, including those who represent notorious defendants, conduct themselves in an ethical manner," the report said.

"However, our inquiries also confirmed the existence of a small group of attorneys who have become integral parts of criminal conspiracies, using their status as sworn officers of the court to advance the criminal purposes of these criminal organizations," it continued.

"It is clear that traditional organized crime and narcotics traffickers depend upon, and could not effectively operate without, these attorneys."

The staff said its findings do not represent the official views of the President's Commission on Organized Crime or any of its commissioners.

President Reagan signed an executive order in July 1983 creating the commission, whose purpose is to "make a full and complete national and region-by-region analysis of organized crime."

The report submitted to members of the commission and top Justice Department and law enforcement officials Monday served as the linchpin for discussion of lawyer ethics, organized crime and ethical standards of the American Bar Association.

Leftists threatened with ouster in France

PARIS (AP) — A combination of rightist parties won more than 58 percent of the vote in local elections Monday, and right-wing politicians said this indicated they would oust the governing Socialists in legislative elections next March.

The elections also appeared to give new credibility to the National Front, an extreme right-wing party.

In the first round of elections widely viewed as a tune-up for next spring's voting for a new National Assembly, the combined total of rightist parties was 58.4 percent, according to figures available early Monday.

Voters were choosing representatives for General Councils in France's 95 metropolitan and four overseas departments, or counties. Half of the seats on the General Councils are filled every three years for six-year terms.

Economy may suffer recession next year

WASHINGTON (AP) The nation's economy, which just completed a year of the strongest growth in three decades, could very well be in a recession next year, economists say. The downturn, however, will be less severe than the last recession.

That is the forecast of many of the nation's top economists. Even those who are not calling for an outright recession believe the country will be in a hybrid known as a "growth recession" next year.

The traditional view is that the GNP needs to grow at an annual rate of at least 3 percent to create enough jobs to accommodate a growing labor force.

But the nation's Big Three economic forecasting firms — Wharton Econometrics, Chase Econometrics and Data Resources Inc. — all call for growth in 1986 below 2.5 percent. By comparison, the economy grew 3.9 percent last year, the strongest increase since 1951.

Minister seeks moral support from his flock

Tanner heating system refurbished

By TOD SANDERS
Senior Reporter

Help is on the way for students and staff who are "sweating out" the refurbishing of the Tanner Building's heating and air conditioning systems.

According to Ed Cozens, assistant administrative vice president for physical facilities, the main problem with the air conditioning (or the lack thereof) can be attributed to an undersized system which has not been able to supply enough cool air throughout the building.

"There is not necessarily anything that went wrong when the original system was put in," he said. "But we have hunches that certain areas were underdesigned." One of the main causes of the extra demand for cooling has been the use of a large amount of computers, Cozens said.

"There is a computer in every office, and a lot of computers throughout the building. The heat that the computers give off has caused a need for additional cooling that had not been envisioned."

Cozens said he felt there was nothing wrong with the original plans for the building, but rather it was this lack of envisioning all of the extra heating demands the building would have that has caused problems.

"This is the question of who is at fault for the lack of foresight of the building's cooling needs, Cozens refused to blame the construction contractors.

"The contractors are not at fault," he said. "They were just following the specifications they were given."

Cliff Riley, manager of utilities for physical facilities, joined Cozens in absolving the contractors of any blame.

"I'm not going to lay blame on anybody," he said. "It was not the contractor's fault."

Not only has the lack of cool air been a problem, but in some areas there has been an overabundance of hot air.

"Some rooms are cold and some are hot, it just depends on what room you are talking about," Riley said. "Some rooms that are built on the outside walls and have a lot of windows are affected by the outside temperature and an inadequate hot air flow in the room."

According to Cozens, most buildings constructed on campus allow for an "overdesign factor" to accommodate any unforeseen future needs the building might have.

When the (Tanner) building began operating, we recognized that there were insufficiencies in certain areas. "Now we are supplementing the original design of the heating and cooling systems to accommodate the building's additional needs."

Power plant to save energy by pooling cities' resources

By SUSAN GEIS
Universe Staff Writer

A new Bonanza Power Plant will soon be created by pooling energy resources of eight Utah cities to provide more economical, a power board director said.

Bob Bonnett of the Provo City Power Company, said the pooling project will create more economical use of energy by sharing benefits of power resources from eight cities.

The cities — Provo, Springville, Levan, Manti, Spanish Fork, Payson, Nephi, and Salem — according to Bonnett, are presently pooling government power resources under the Western Area Power Administration. The new plant will pool all energy resources from the participating cities by providing a larger capacity to store power.

The $6 million project is designed to be a two-unit plant located four miles southeast of Vernal, Utah. Each of the two units will have a 400 megawatt capacity.

According to Bonnett, one 400 megawatt plant is now ready for commercial use. He said the unit should be put to use sometime within this calendar year.

The completion of the second plant, Bonanza II, will be postponed until there is a need for the additional capacity. According to Bonnett, this is expected to happen sometime in the early 1990s. He said the second plant's usage will be triggered by demand.

The plant is owned by Desert Generation and Transmission Co-Operative. The co-op is made up of six rural electric association cooperatives which serve electrical needs of rural farm areas in and outside of Utah.

Joel Herz, a consulting engineer for J.S. Sawvel Company, said the plan will provide a low cost, reliable power supply. "It doesn't displace the need of future resources, but makes better use of what we have now," he said.

Bill Mahen, a consulting engineer for R.W. Beck company, said the Bonanza Power Plant will be a "mixing bowl" for the Utah Municipal Power Association (UMPA).

All resources from participating cities will be pooled and sold back to all members.

Valuables reported stolen from cars

Provo police say they are investigating eight auto burglaries and an auto theft in Provo over the weekend. Police currently have no suspects.

Broken windows and a smashed camper shell were found in the parking lot of Provo's Excelsior Hotel, police said. A checkbook was the only item reported missing.

Rainforest apartments, 1949 N. 200 West, was the site of an early morning burglary. Early Sunday morning an auto owner reported stereo speakers, a power booster and a video cassette missing between 3:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. More stereo equipment was reportedly taken from an unlocked car near 100 N. and 100 East.

In northwest Provo, police report a bag containing $20 in cash, a checkbook and disc camera were taken from an unlocked car. Several blocks south, personal items amounting to $95 were reported stolen from another unlocked car.

Currently police continue their investigation of the theft of a Honda Civic valued at $4,000.

The owner of the Civic apparently lost the car key Sunday morning and the car was stolen that night. The car was parked near the owner's apartment in northeast Provo.

$48-million loss blamed on FAA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire accused the Federal Aviation Administration on Sunday of letting $48 million get away by "turning a blind eye" to the value of federal land around Florida airports.

In the 10th anniversary edition of his "Golden Fleece Award," the Wisconsin Democrat accused the FAA of failing to supervise the use and leasing of federal land set aside to help municipal airports.

The FAA should be grounded for the fly-by-night approach to managing these valuable lands," Proxmire said in his monthly handout.

Young Ambassadors sing, dance while promoting Y

Some groups sing for pleasure. Others sing to entertain, and some, like the Young Ambassadors, sing to promote BYU and what it stands for.

The two touring groups have sung in cities all over the United States and in many foreign countries. "Our principle purpose for touring is to promote the (LDS) Church and BYU outside of Utah County," said Mark Huffman, artistic director for one of the groups.

Last year his group toured the southern part of the United States. "Many people didn't believe Mormons sing and dance. We were able to clear up several misconceptions about the church," he said.

Missionary work was important to the late Dee Winterton, former choreographer and director of Young Ambassadors, said Randy Boothe, artistic director. Winterton served as a stake missionary, and he stressed the importance of "reaching out and finding the one" through music, Boothe said.

Members of the group consider touring as a form of missionary work. "Dee constantly reminded us of our duty to reach out," said Mike Phillips, a junior from Portland, Ore., majoring in humanities. During performances members of the group seek out someone in the audience and then visit briefly with them afterward.

Many performers give Books of Mormon, Testaments of Jesus Christ, to audience members as a missionary effort. The books are personalized by Young Ambassadors and given to people they think will benefit from them.

Noelle Green, a freshman from Rancho Mirage, Calif., majoring in dance, recently gave a book away after a show. "I talked with a girl who was new at the high school and felt impressed to leave her a book as we left. She even talked of attending BYU when she graduates," she said.

Besides placing Books of Mormon the Young Ambassadors have other methods of sharing the gospel, such as presenting special firesides on Sundays. During a tour members of the church are encouraged to bring their non-member friends to the firesides.

"We show people through firesides that we are not hollow performers," said Phillips. The fireside program consists of the songs, some written by Boothe, and impromptu talks given by performers that deal with the themes of family, Jesus Christ, service and missionary work. "We deal on a one-to-one basis on our firesides," said Janine Lindsay, a sophomore from Los Altos, Calif., majoring in music theater. "Without lighting and costumes, the audience can see that we are real people, just like they are."

Firesides are put on in foreign countries, too. In countries where the LDS Church is not established, the Young Ambassadors are church ambassadors. Although they cannot talk about religion or leave Books of Mormon, the Young Ambassadors promote the high standards of BYU and the church. "We try to help open doors for the gospel to enter," said Huffman.

Last year the group toured Japan, Thailand, Hong Kong, the People's Republic of China and Taiwan. In a Thailand newspaper, journalist Wee 'Soo Cheang wrote, "The Young Ambassadors' performance was everything it promised to be: a dazzling musical spectacular that delighted people of all ages."

The missionary work done by the group differs from the done on a full-time mission, said Wayne Larson, a senior from Redlands, Calif., majoring in accounting. "I miss, as a Young Ambassador, the chance to teach the principles of the gospel and to see people grow and develop," he said.

"If it weren't for the missionary aspect of the group, I wouldn't be a part of it," said Larson.

'Supreme' nerd starts own club

CINCINNATI (AP) — Their organization's letterhead is printed upside down and one of their great joys is enlisting new members against their will.

They're different, all right. But what else would you expect from a group of nerds?

The fledgling International Organization of Nerds was started four months ago by a self-employed Cincinnati businessman who has big plans to tap a growing fascination with — well — nerdism.

"There's plenty of nerds out there," said B.L. Chapman, organization founder and self-proclaimed Supreme Archnerd.

Chapman, 42, formed the organization to help raise money for muscular dystrophy research and have some fun.

Chapman worked up a membership packet, complete with official nerd identification card, bumper sticker and publication called the "Big Nerd News."

A few mailings attracted attention, and the organization has grown to 372 members in the United States and Canada.

Most people become members courtesy of a friend who sends in their name. Chapman does the rest.

"I can't stop people from sending memberships to people," he said with a laugh. "When I get the money and people nominate other people, that's the way it is. I just follow through."

What does it cost to join?

"It's $4 or $5 for the complete membership kit. I've been asked a number of times, well what's the difference between $4 and $5? It's a dollar," Chapman deadpanned. "I had one guy send in for 10 memberships, and what he sent averaged $4.35 per membership. So he sent a nerdy amount. What the people are doing is crazy."

Three Y musical groups to perform

Three BYU performing groups — the Symphonic Band, the Chamber Orchestra and the Wind Symphony — will present their annual spring concert this week.

The Symphonic Band, directed by Daniel Bachelder, will perform today at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

The band will perform "Toccata Marziale" by Ralph Vaughan Williams, "Procession of the Nobles" by Rimsky-Korsakov, "Second Suite for Military Band" by Gustav Holst and Mennin's "Canzona for Brass Choir."

The Chamber Orchestra, conducted by Ralph Laycock, will take the stage Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC, and will perform

Mozart's "Impressaria" and Vivaldi's "Concerto for Four Violins" and "Concerto for Two Violins." The orchestra will also present the first movement of the "Concertante for Viola and Viola Soloist" by Mozart and Stravinsky's "Pulcinella Suite."

The week will conclude with David Blackinton conducting the Wind Symphony Saturday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC.

The symphony will present the program it took on tour Feb. 26 at the annual national convention of the College Band Directors National Association in Boulder, Colo.

The Wind Symphony was chosen as one of nine groups from throughout the United States to perform at the convention.

Varsity Theater starts 50-cent night tonight

In order to compete with dollar night at local theaters, the Varsity Theater will begin showing movies on Tuesday nights for 50 cents, beginning tonight.

"We are continually trying to improve the quality of our theater," said Linda Nelson, theater manager. "Fifty-Cent Night is a change made with the students in mind. We hope the students will take advantage and see more of the weekday movies," she said.

BYU's Julie Zumsteg to give cello recital

Music from the works of Bach, Beethoven and Chopin will be featured at a recital by BYU faculty cellist Julie Zumsteg tonight at 8 in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC.

The program will begin with "Suite No. 5 in C Minor," by Johann Sebastian Bach.

Other pieces will include "Trio No. 5 in D Major" ("Ghost") by Ludwig van Beethoven and Frederic Chopin's "Sonata in G Minor for Cello and Piano."

Pianist Irene Peery and violinist Barbara Williams will accompany Zumsteg.

Zumsteg initially studied with Nina de Veritch and Christian Tiemeyer, both former principal cellists of the Utah Symphony.

She received her bachelor's degree in music from BYU and her master's degree from the University of Southern California where she studied with the late Gregor Piatigorsky.

Zumsteg is presently a member of the BYU Music Department where she teaches cello. She is also a cellist with the Desert String Quartet.

Cougarettes tryouts today

The Cougarettes will be holding tryouts for their 1985-86 squad this week.

Today, a mandatory workshop is planned in 270 RB at 8:15 a.m. to teach all interested women the routine they will be judged on at the Thursday tryouts. Current members of the team are also required to try out, said Claudia Rowley, artistic director.

The judging will be on Thursday in 270 RB at 8:15 p.m. The panel of judges will consist of eight to 10 representatives from various backgrounds. Rowley has asked coaches, athletes and dance professionals to be on the panel.

The contestants will try out in groups of four and be judged on showmanship, dance agility, teachability and coordination.

Walk-ons make football team with ability and determination

By JAY RUYBALID
Senior Reporter

Perhaps two out of every 50 who try every year to make the BYU football team as a walk-on ever progress to the point of playing regularly on the varsity squad, but this doesn't stop many from trying.

A walk-on is a student athlete who does not have a scholarship and usually was not recruited, yet tries out for the team anyway. The first step in the long road to becoming a varsity BYU football player as a walk-on was made for many last week with the initial walk-on tryout.

Eighty players showed up for the tryout, according to linebacker coach Ken Schmidt, and 50 of them were invited to attend spring practice this week with the rest of the team.

At the conclusion of spring practice at the end of March, only 20 to 30 of these will be retained for fall practice and the regular season.

Last year the Cougars had 140 players on the squad with 96 of those on scholarship. The others were walk-ons. This year the coaches would like to cut the total number of players to 120.

If a walk-on makes the team he still cannot receive the same opportunities and privileges afforded to scholarship players and is often treated as a peon, according to walk-on Jay Shumway.

Shumway, who was offered a scholarship as a deep snapper for the Cougars last season, said, "You're treated different; it's a fact."

Notably, walk-ons are not allowed to eat at the training table with the rest of the team. This is an NCAA rule. Scholarship players are given free shoes — walk-ons are not.

"You put up with it because you know you can do it," said Shumway. "You know you can make the team and you love the game."

Shumway was a defensive end and punter in high school at Granger, Utah, but received no solid scholarship offers. He felt, though, that he could make the team despite the obvious obstacles. "You feel so left out all the time," he said. "You've got to tell yourself, I'm doing alright; I'll make it."

Shumway believes timing plays an important part in making the team as a walk-on. "It just happened to be there at the right time. Two weeks later and they wouldn't have needed me. I'm kind of one in a million."

He was invited as a freshman by the coaching staff to try out as a punter, but a deep snapper was needed and Shumway filled the position. He played with the junior varsity squad and then went on a mission.

Following his mission he tried out again as a punter and again made the team — still as a deep snapper. Coach Dick Felt recognized him from two years earlier and said, "Here's our man."

"It's hard for a walk-on to make it, but BYU gives a better chance to walk-ons than any school in the country," Shumway said.

"We don't make it harder on walk-ons," head coach LaVell Edwards said, "but the system does. There are some things we can't do, like having them eat at the training table. But we don't treat them differently on the field."

Shumway is joined by a few other players who will return next season as scholarship players after beginning their careers as walk-ons. Most notable are senior running back Kelly Smith and junior wide receiver Mark Bellini. Recently graduated star punter Lee Johnson was also a walk-on.

Smith walked on as a wide receiver with the jayvee team, switched to defensive back in 1983 after a redshirt season and finally wound up in his current position as running back.

Bellini attributed good work habits and good athletic ability as the keys to his making the team. "When you want something, you'll work twice as hard as somebody that already has it," agreed Shumway.

"I recommend it (trying out as a walk-on) only to those who think they can make it and love the game."

BYU tailback Kelley Smith takes off down field in a Cougar home game last season. Smith, who was a vital factor in BYU's national championship last year, is one of the few walk-ons who have made it big in major college football.

Women netters crush Colorado

The BYU women's tennis team stretched its current home-court winning streak to six by sweeping the Colorado Buffaloes 9-0 without the services of No. 1 singles player Lesley Hakala.

The 16th-ranked Cougars entered the confrontation with the Buffaloes riding the momentum of an upset of No. 10 Arizona, a match some were calling the biggest win of the year. The momentum was clearly evident from the start as BYU romped easily past Colorado.

Freshman Lynn Henderson took over the vacant No. 1 singles spot from Hakala, who was resting a sore wrist, and proved worthy of it by winning easily. Jennifer Stoker, who moved up to the second position, also won.

The Cougars' recent domination at home has also included sweeping wins over New Mexico, Nebraska and Iowa in addition to the victory over Colorado.

Ewing, Mullin, Tisdale head list of AP's All-America basketball team

NEW YORK (AP) — Xavier McDaniel of Wichita State, who could become the first player to be named Division I players in both scoring and rebounding, already holds a distinction among those selected to The Associated Press' All-America basketball team.

McDaniel, a 6-foot-7 senior, wasn't a unanimous choice in the voting released Monday. All the others were — Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale, St. John's Chris Mullin and Memphis State's Steve Perry.

Heading into this week's NCAA tournament, McDaniel was tied for the scoring lead with Loyola of Chicago's Alfreddrick Hughes. Each has a scoring average of 27.4 points. McDaniel has shot 56 percent from the field this season.

"It's a great honor," said McDaniel in Wichita, Kan. "I always got honorable mention wherever I played. But I wouldn't have been disappointed if I didn't make it."

Ewing, Tisdale and Mullin helped the United States win the Olympic gold medal last summer, an opportunity McDaniel missed when he was passed over on the invitation list. Their teams are top-seeded for the NCAA playoffs along with Michigan.

Ewing, an intimidating 7-foot, 240-pound senior center who no doubt will be the No. 1 draft choice in the National Basketball Association draft, led the defending NCAA champions to a 30-2 record, including the Big East Conference tournament. He averaged 14.6 points, 9.7 rebounds and blocked 121 shots.

Tisdale, a 6-8 junior center, paced Oklahoma to a 25-5 record this season, including the Big Eight Conference regular season and tournament crowns.

Mullin, a 6-6 senior guard, guided St. John's, the Big East regular season winner, past Georgetown 69-65 last January with his scoring and passing ability. He scored 25 points against the Hoyas in the Big East tourney title game but their defense hampered his passing game.

Big name teams neglected by NCAA will compete in NIT starting tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana, Louisville, Houston, UCLA and Virginia.

The list reads like an honor roll of college basketball teams that have dominated the NCAA tournament in recent years.

And they'll all be in the same tournament this year — the National Invitation Tournament.

"With the names I've heard so far, the NIT sounds like a very prestigious tournament and we are excited to be in the field," said Virginia coach Terry Holland, whose team reached the NCAA's Final Four last season.

Pairings for the 32-team NIT, which begins tonight, were announced Sunday night after the NCAA finished picking its 64-team field. There were several big-name teams for the NIT to choose from.

Big name teams
Houston, 16-13 this season, went to the NCAA championship game the last two seasons, losing to Georgetown last year and falling to North Carolina State the previous season.

Indiana, 15-13, ran into severe trouble in the final weeks of this season, dropping six of its last seven games to finish with its worst record since 1970. The Hoosiers have won four NCAA tournaments, most recently in 1981.

Louisville, 16-16, won the NCAA in 1980 and has been to that event 17 times.

UCLA, 16-12, has won more NCAA tournaments than any school, 10. But the Bruins were ineligible to the NIT selection committee after being left out of the NCAA field for the second straight year.

UCLA coach Walt Hazzard said he was glad his team was picked for the NIT. "The most important thing is that we earned the right to be there," he said. "I think this team deserves to be in a tournament."

Louisville coach Denny Crum said he did not expect his team to be chosen by the NCAA selection committee.

"We didn't deserve to be in the NCAA," he said. "Face it, when you win 16 games the NCAA does not take too much interest in you."

The NIT will hold first-round games Tuesday through Saturday at campus sites around the country. Then, after staying on campus sites for second round and quarterfinal games, the four survivors will head for Madison Square Garden, site of the semifinals on March 27 and the final March 29.

On Tuesday the NIT begins when Texas A&M, 18-11, plays at New Mexico, 15-12. Canisius, 20-8, plays at Nebraska, 15-13, on Wednesday.

Seven games are scheduled for Thursday. They are Montana, 22-7, at UCLA; Alcorn St., 23-6, at Louisville; Virginia, 16-15, at West Virginia, 20-8; Bradley, 17-12, at Marquette; Tennessee, 18-14, at Tennessee Tech, 19-9; Florida, 18-11, at Southwestern Louisiana, 16-13; and Kent State, 17-12, against Cincinnati, 16-13, at Riverfront Coliseum in Cincinnati.

On Friday it's Houston at Lamar, 19-11; Butler, 19-9, at Indiana; Clemson, 16-12, at Tennessee-Chattanooga, 22-7; St. Joseph's, Pa., 18-11; at Missouri, 18-13; Fordham, 19-11, at Richmond, 20-10; Santa Clara, 20-8, at Fresno State, 21-8; and Wake Forest, 15-13, at South Florida, 17-11.

Georgetown, Michigan named top seeds in NCAA tournament

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's just one happy, 64-member family, but the NCAA college basketball tournament is finally set up.

"We'll be playing in Big East places, so we should have some support," John Thompson, coach of No. 1 Georgetown, said Sunday after finding out his top-seeded team would be playing in the East region.

"It looks like a good place to go," said Lou Carnesecca, coach of No. 2 St. John's, after hearing that his team would be playing in the West region.

"We're just happy that we got a high seed," said Mike Krzyzewski coach of No. 7 Duke, after learning his team would be third-seeded in the West.

Just one big, happy family, right? Well, not exactly.

"I am shocked and extremely hurt for our players and our conference," West Virginia coach Gale Catlett said after his team, which went 20-8 during the season, was not chosen to go to the NCAA tournament.

Also among this year's missing are a few teams that have had their share of the glory in the past but have had trouble during the present season — UCLA, Indiana, Houston, Virginia and Louisville. Those five teams will be going to the National Invitation Tournament this year.

The select teams and pairings for this year's tournament, which begins Thursday, were announced after all the pre-NCAA tournament games were finished.

Georgia Tech downed No. 6 North Carolina 57-54 to win the Atlantic Coast Conference post-season tournament, and Texas Tech trounced Arkansas 67-64 to take the Southwest Conference tournament.

Vic Bubas, chairman of the Division I basketball committee, said his group met for three days and nights in setting up the NCAA event.

"The first 20 or 21 at-large teams were easy. It was no trouble," Bubas said. "The last 15 got tricky and I'm telling you, the last six or eight, we could have stayed there a week. It was an agonizing experience."

To no one's surprise, Georgetown was made the No. 1 seed in its home territory, the East. The Hoyas start their drive toward a second straight NCAA tournament when they face Lehigh, 12-18, in Hartford, Conn.

Dean Smith, the veteran coach at North Carolina, also is wary of his team's first-round opponent in the Southeast regional, unheralded Middle Tennessee State, 17-13, of the Ohio Valley Conference.

"Middle Tennessee is certainly capable, as it proved in its conference tournament last week," he said after his team squandered an 11-point, first-half lead against Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Yvon Joseph's rebound basket in the final minute gave Tech its first lead of the game at 51-50, and then Mark Price made two foul shots to seal the victory.

Tech, 24-7, will be making just its second NCAA appearance, its first since 1960. The Yellow Jackets are the second-seeded team in the East and will face Mercer in a first-round game at the Omni.

Also on Sunday, Michigan's Gary Grant grabbed a loose ball and sank a short bank shot to give the Wolverines their victory over Indiana.

It was Michigan's first victory at Indiana since 1966 and gave the Wolverines, last year's NIT champions, a 25-3 record going into the NCAA tournament.

Michigan is the top seed in the Southeast regional and will take on Fairleigh Dickinson in a first-round game.

Also included in this year's tournament is Kentucky. The Final Four will be played on the Wildcats' home court in Lexington.

Kentucky went 16-12 this season and had the poorest record among the at-large teams.

He said Kentucky was chosen "because of the strength of its schedule. It was brutal."

BYU volleyball player selected to U.S. team

The BYU women's volleyball team's middle blocker Raelyn Hoglund has been selected to compete with the United States Women's National Volleyball Team.

Hoglund, a senior from Rexburg, Idaho, majoring in design, is one of 14 players chosen to work out in the national program. Selections were announced following trials in Colorado Springs, Colo., where 64 contestants from collegiate and club teams vied for the available spots on the U.S. team.

None of the members of the 1984 silver medal-winning U.S. Olympic team participated in the trials, but commitments to the team are said to have been made by Olympians Paula Weishoff, Jeanne Beauprey and Julie Vollersten.

"I'll join the team in April and will work out daily through the summer," said Hoglund. "But Japan, Korea and Canada are sending teams to the U.S. in March, and I'm going to play in some of those games."

"I'm excited for the opportunity to practice with the National Team and with the prospect of playing in the 1988 Olympics," she said.

"These 14 athletes are the best volleyball players in the country right now," said Tennessee coach Bob Bertucci, a member of the selection committee.

"Marilisa and Sari are national team caliber players," said BYU coach Elaine Michaels. "They should help our squad right away."

Michaels added that Sanders will be an asset to the team in the future, although the freshman might redshirt during her first year as a Cougar.

BYU spikers get top recruits

The BYU women's volleyball team recently recruited two members of the Finnish national team and the top Utah volleyball prospect to conclude one of its best recruiting years ever.

The Finnish players are Marilisa Salmi, a 5-10 setter from Kurikka, and Sari Kristina Virtanen, a 6-0 middle blocker from Sinikalla, Finland. The Utah player is Jill Sanders, a 6-1 hitter from Highland High.

"Marilisa and Sari are national team caliber players," said BYU coach Elaine Michaels. "They should help our squad right away."

Michaels added that Sanders will be an asset to the team in the future, although the freshman might redshirt during her first year as a Cougar.

Y gymnasts set high marks

It was a night of all-time bests and outstanding performances as the injury-plagued BYU men's gymnastics team destroyed Eastern Montana 281.25 to 253.60.

The Saturday night victory came just 24 hours after the Cougars finished in second place in a three-team meet, defeating EMU but losing to sixth-ranked UCLA.

BYU's win Saturday saw two of Coach Wayne Young's top enior gymnasts explode with stellar performances. All-around standout Bob Gauthier broke the school record with a combined score of 57.85, while still rings specialist John Innocenti equaled his highest mark of the year with a near-perfect 9.9 tally.

After the meet Gauthier, although visibly thrilled with his record-breaking performance was exhausted. "I am really tired, but I feel pretty good. I am looking forward to the WAC tournament and also The PAC-10 invitational," he said.
